

Dear ACS friends

Two hyperlinks that you may find useful.

First is a link that provides access to renown philosopher Karsten Harries's work. There you can find quite a bit of his lectures, class notes, and writings. He's making available more and more of his remarkable work (he tells me he just added 1500 pages of text) as he is beginning to consider retirement. His generosity is our gain.

Second is a link with, arguably, the 'best' architecture resources online. These websites feature modern and contemporary architecture and include great photos and information on new projects around the world.
