Le Madonnelle: The Sidewalk Saints of Italy

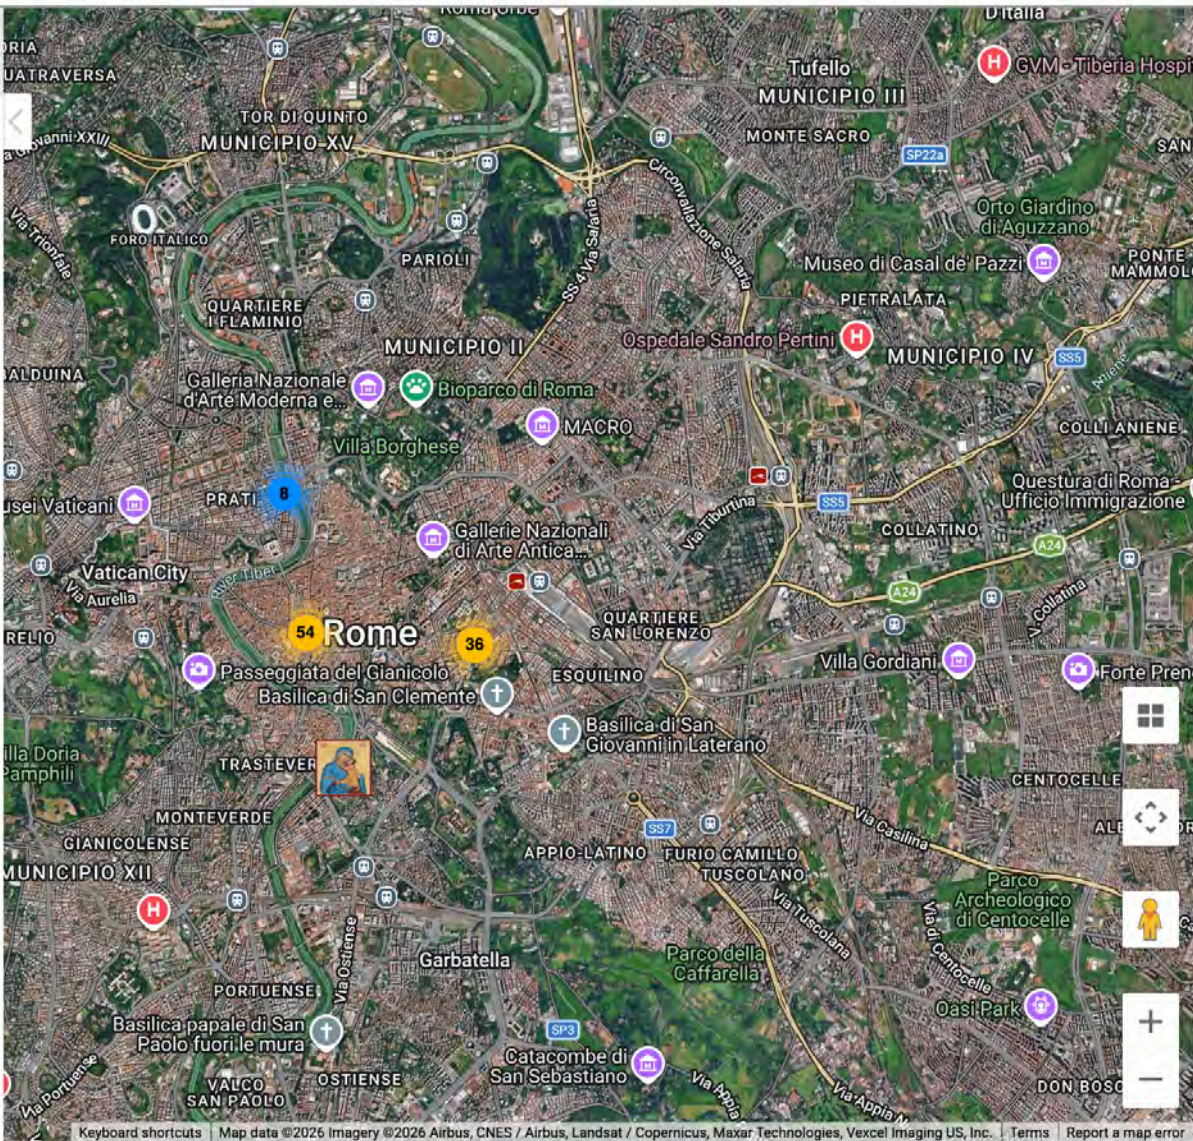

In December 2024, I traveled to Rome for 4 weeks to work on my project Le Madonnelle: The Sidewalk Saints of Italy. I photographed almost every day, walking throughout the city and its suburbs. I have now photographed more than 300 unique madonnelle in Rome. While I have no doubt that there are still locations that I missed, I feel confident that I have a fairly comprehensive record of Roman madonnelle.

I spent 2025 and early 2026 editing the images that I took and working with the technology team at Hamilton College to implement an interactive map-based website of the project. This is designed to be explored either on a desktop (where the images can be seen at scale) or on a smartphone (where a user could use the map feature to navigate in situ from one location to another).

The interactive map can be found here: <https://www.robertknight.com/fineart/madonnelle-map.html>

I am profoundly indebted to the ACSF for their support of this project. Thank you!
